The perfect "snap" - a couple of inches above where the scape grows out of top leaves. /Submitted by Debbie Barnhart

Time to "snap" up those scapes!

DEBBIE BARNHART

Haliburton County Master Gardener

Snap up those scapes while they are crisp and tender, or what I should say is "snap" them off.

Hardneck garlic puts out a round flower stalk from between its top leaves. It grows straight up for a few inches and then goes into a curl. This is the optimum time to "snap" it off. This enables the plant's energy to go into bulb formation and gifts you with a tasty, nutritional gourmet vegetable that you can steam, saute, roast, stir-fry, chop, puree, pickle and barbecue. Use them in soups, stews, omelets, scrambled eggs, potato dishes, roasted side dishes and they are delicious pickled!

If you are fortunate enough to have garlic in your garden, watch for scapes around mid-June, however, the optimum time for scaping is once the scape has made a complete curl and starts into a second one – SNAP here. The scapes grow quickly and must be removed to avoid diverting too much energy from the bulbs, so it is advisable to check everyday or so to snap at the right time. Just a quick note: it is best to manually snap as using scissors or clipping tools can damage the leaves around the scape, this can cut down on the plant producing the biggest bulbs. What the leaves take in is directly fed to the bulb. Left too long and they go woody, as they are gathering strength to straighten and form seed heads.

So, the optimum time to scape is when the round stem is at least six inches above the leaves and has formed a curl. This will ensure that the scape is tender and crisp and should snap off with ease. If you do not grow or have access to garlic in the garden, locate your local grower and browse your local farmers market, which should have an abundant supply.

Preparing your scapes

Whether you are snapping from the garden or snapping up from the Farmers' Market, you will need to rinse with water and let drain on a paper towel to absorb excess moisture. Store in poly bags with holes in them (to let them breathe) and place in the refrigerator crisper section. They will keep for up to three months. Remove as needed from bags, cut away any dried ends and voilà … ready for the recipe of your choice.

For longer storage, wash and pat dry - cut into size needed – place in freezer bag - place directly in freezer. No blanching required and keeps for one year.

Choice recipes

Basic scape spread: Finely chop cleaned scapes in a food processor. Slowly blend in extra virgin oil until it forms a smooth mixture. Use as a topping on French bread, crackers, making garlic bread, any sandwich, mixed in with pasta or a base for stir-fries. For a change up, blend in some fresh hot peppers or green onions. The spread will last two to three weeks in the refrigerator. It can be frozen in containers, but used immediately after removing from the freezer.

Decadent cheese scape spread

8 oz cream cheese
4 tbsp (heaping) Basic Garlic Spread (above)
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
3 tbsp mayo
Extra virgin oil (if needed to smooth the mixture)
Chopped fresh hot pepper to taste

Method: In a blender or food processor, cream the cheese and mayo, add remaining ingredients and blend until smooth, adding a little more olive oil if needed. Can be frozen if there is any left over!

Roasted: Place scapes in a lightly oiled (oil of your choice) roasting pan, top with kosher salt or sea salt, cover pan and place in oven at 425 Degrees for 30 to 45 minutes or until scapes begin to turn brown. Serve as a side or main dish. Tastes like roasted garlic but creamier.

Scape soup No.1

3 cups scapes, cut into short pieces
1 med onion. Chopped
1 tbsp olive oil
1 tsp thyme leaves or ½ tsp dried thyme
3 cups of chicken broth
1 cup cream
Salt and pepper to taste

Method: Sauté the scapes and the onion in the olive oil over medium heat until vegetables are soft. Add the thyme at the end. In a food processor, purée the vegetables and add chicken stock as needed to make a smooth paste. In a saucepan, heat the vegetable mixture and add the remaining chicken broth. Bring to a simmer and add the cream. Adjust the seasoning. Serves four.

Nocturnal

Thunder rumbling through the hills, splintering the silence of Sky, rolling through the landscape of my dream, roiling River of memories, battered by the storm, shattering my sleep, as my ears jolt awake, listening to thunder plunder night of its peace.
I lie, sleepless as Sky, flashes of lightning illuminating the room, then booms of thunder, louder and closer than before.
I rise to close the curtains tighter, to seal the room from the storm, but remain standing at the window instead of scurrying back to the cocoon of bed, bolts of lightning splitting Sky open, releasing rivers of Rain, that hammers the roof, pierces the earth, lashes grass and the flesh of leaves, trembling in their trees,
their silhouettes billowing in the blackness like nocturnal beasts, leaves feasting on Rain that drenches their stems, greening their branches that thrash in the storm,
as I watch from the window, Wind prowling outside, veins of lightning bleeding into Sky 'till they've bled dry, thunder surrendering to the torrents of Rain streaming down, steady as the beating of a drum, the hardness of it as it lands, slapping leaves, impaling the Lake that I can't see but know is there, floating beneath a moonless, starless Sky, scarred by millennia of lightning and thunder bolts, the Lake cradling its darkness as Rain falls.
I open the window a sliver, to feel the cleanness of freshly scoured Air, that the hills and grass and Lake feel too,
the tongues of leaves flapping in the Wind, lapping up the drops of Rain before they reach the ground, the sound luring me back to bed to curl deep into the cocoon of sleep, slipping into the stream of another dream, that I won't remember when I wake, fragments of memories and images floating somewhere, like a Lake beneath midnight Sky.

Weak ties and strong communities

KATE BUTLER
Special to County Life

"DOES EVERYONE around here know everyone else?" It's a question I'm often asked by visitors to the Haliburton Highlands Museum, usually just after I've revealed that I know the person who runs the accommodation where they're staying or the person from whom they just made a purchase at a local farmers' market. While everyone may not know everyone, there are definitely times in Haliburton County when the oft-referred to "six degrees of separation" seems much smaller, but that just makes our community stronger.

According to social network theory, our lives and communities are comprised of a mixture of strong and weak ties. Strong ties are those relationships we have with family members and close friends, but weaker ties with acquaintances and friends of friends are also vitally important and they have a long history in our community. Back in an era when transportation challenges meant that there were fewer visitors to the Haliburton area, this truly was a place where everyone knew everyone. Then, as now, ties were forged through clubs, places of worship and community groups, but it was also likely that when walking down the street, you would have known nearly everyone you passed, at least in some distant sort of way. If you popped into a shop, the shopkeeper would probably have known your name and might even have been able to predict what you would have been looking to purchase, depending on your habits. In the early 20th Century, a stroll through Haliburton Village might have meant that you would have stopped off on the front porch of the Grand Central Hotel to pass the time of day with whoever happened to be sitting out front, while a few decades later, a visit to the Kosy Korner would have likely involved saying hello to everyone else in the restaurant, because you knew them all. Though these sorts of community ties meant that anonymity was pretty much an impossibility, they also meant that neighbours looked out for neighbours and that there were informal supports at the community level in times of need. Beyond that, however, these sort of casual interactions give us a sense of belonging to and being a part of a place, and that's vital to our well-being.

Over the last couple of years, many of our more casual social ties have fallen by the wayside, as the unusual times in which we were living forced us to keep our social circles small and to expedite our errands and in-person interactions to the barest of essentials. This summer, I feel the time is right to re-build our social networks beyond our computer screens. Live events are returning to our community, so why not take in some music, or a local festival and just see who you might run into. Take some extra time to chat in a local store or coffee shop and say hello to the people you pass on your evening walk. Look for those people with whom you can build new connections, those ties that you can renew and those ways in which we can brighten each other's day. We may joke about those times when a visit to the grocery store for one item takes an hour, because of the number of people we ran into who we knew, but I also know that for many of us, those were among the interactions we missed. Our wider networks make us and our communities stronger, so let's not take them for granted ever again.

Top 10 reasons that delayed the invention of finger foods

I LOVE FINGER foods as much as the next guy, but there was a time when they weren't even a part of dining culture. There were a lot of reason for this, of course. But here are my top 10.

STEVE GALEA
Humour Columnist

1. Live lobsters and snapping turtle entrees.
2. An unhealthy reliance on boiled food.
3. Have you ever seen a Neanderthal's fingernails?
4. One piece of meat left. Twelve guys with axes.
5. Last time someone said, "finger food" the cannibals got carried away.
6. Everyone always drank the lemon water finger cleaning dishes.
7. The fear of mom grabbing you by the ear.
8. Why use your fingers when your toes aren't doing anything?
9. Broiled porcupine.
10. Was unfair to all the nine-fingered diners.

Rivers

Roots bulging from the earth, slithering along the trail, around rocks and other roots, that trickle into one another, flowing down towards the River, boulders bridging its banks, tannins staining the water, the colour of tea.
Sunlight dripping through the branches of trees, hunching over the River, blurring the edges of rocks that hatch from the River, water frothing around them, slowing its flow, as I stand on the back of a boulder, half in sunlight, half in shade, a pine growing alongside the boulder, its trunk skimming its haunches, its branches hanging over the edge of the River, flapping like giant wings in the breeze, the needles on its tips, softer and greener than the rest of the tree, as I finger the spots where pine cones will bud, the smell of earth permeating Air, as I peel back clumps of moss cloaking the rocks, their underbellies, rich and dark, concealing the hidden parts of rocks, their clamminess seeping into my hands.
I place the caps of moss back on, feeling like I'm revealing a secret that wants to remain sealed, peering down at the jumble of roots poking through the ground, slinking towards the River's edge, where chunks of earth have eroded, and threads of root dangle in the Air, their trees leaning towards the water, their branches bending to sip from its flow, that swerves and swirls and slows, navigating the rocks jutting out of the River, a stick wedged in the sliver of space between two rocks, that I wonder how it will dislodge itself, how it got stuck there in the first place, maybe a branch broken off in a storm, travelling down the River 'till it hit this snag, water pushing against it, trying to loosen the rocks' grip.
I leap from the boulder onto another, the current in front of me, stronger than behind me, as fewer rocks interrupt its flow.
I listen to the murmur that mushrooms into a roar, water slipping over the flattened steps of rocks, the River rushing towards a waterfall, the surge of water swelling its flow, as I stand here on the bridge of boulders, deciding whether to clamber back to the bank that's shielded in the shade of the towering pine, or cross over to the other side, where rocks roast on the River's edge, roots, bulging like veins from the scarred earth, slither around them, towards the River that quenches their thirst, drenches their wounds,
buried deeper than anyone sees,
only leaves, flourishing in their trees,
Rivers of light flowing through them.

Highlands' media moves music

BARRIE MARTIN

Halibutron County Folk Society

The Haliburton Highlands is blessed with three newspapers and two radio stations – that is a lot of media for a small community. Their impact on the vitality of this place we call home, cottage or playground is significant. Their contribution to our local performing arts scene is extraordinary. As a presenter of live music, the Haliburton County Folk Society greatly appreciates the efforts of our broadcasters and editors to promote performances and events that make us tap toes, sing, smile, laugh, clap, cry and enjoy life in these challenging times.

For each live concert we present we send out a 30 second public service announcement (PSA) to each of the radio stations a few days before the performance. Both stations air the PSA several times reminding audiences that the concert is happening and to buy tickets which, of course, is very helpful. It doesn't stop there. Both stations make an extra effort to get the word out. For the recent Steve Poltz concert, Rick Lowes of Moose FM took the initiative to reach out to Steve for what turned out to be a very funny and eclectic interview. Rick notes that "while somewhat limited by the station's programming regime, we do our best to promote and celebrate performing arts events. Live music is an important aspect of our community."

As a community radio station, Canoe FM provides amazing support for live performances. Beyond the PSA, Canoe FM is willing to interview a performer, sometimes more than once, in the weeks and days leading up to the concert. Who can forget those interviews conducted by Mike Jaycock with his dulcet tones? Or the dynamic conversations that Kris Kadwell (from Paddling Beyond the Mainstream show), Penny Randall Mowbray (from Locally Sourced) and Sue Shikaze (from Northern Aire) have conducted with visiting and local performers? To augment the interviews, many of the Canoe FM's radio hosts will play the performer's music and the station will often add their songs into their ongoing daytime playlists. Canoe FM presents programming that highlights various genres of music such as folk/roots, blues, jazz, country, bluegrass, theatre musicals, and big band, which is another opportunity to showcase coming performances. Programs such as Locally Sourced and Haliburton County Local Talent Hour plays the music of local musicians, which is instrumental (pun intended) in developing our local talent. Canoe FM also provides a performance space and recording services.

Manager, Roxanne Casey, observed that "Community Radio offers Canadian musicians an opportunity to get their music played and heard across the country and here at Canoe FM we are thrilled to be able to provide this service to these great musicians. The icing on the cake for Canoe FM is being able to support, encourage and promote our own local musicians."

Our local newspapers are also ready to promote performance events. They will print media releases, conduct interviews, and write feature articles to provide readers with insights into the musician's personality and music. It is not unusual to see Darren Lum of the Haliburton Echo or Sam Gillett of The Highlander at a concert taking photographs. A recent issue of The Highlander and The Highlander Weekend featured several articles and photographs of performing arts. The Echo's County Life dedicates space for a monthly column from the Folk Society.

Editor Darren Lum said, "The role of a local newspaper is to serve the community. That entails informing the public and promoting events. It also includes shining a light on culture and giving people opportunities for interaction, which includes staged shows/concerts and interactive events such as the Haliburton County Folk Society's open stage where locals can not only be entertained, but express themselves. Leaving space to the Society is an opportunity that ensures County Life readers are informed and provides insight to the music scene of the area."

Highlander editor Lisa Gervais said, "We know all forms of art are important to Highlanders. Coming out of COVID-19, people are particularly starved to hear live music, watch community theatre, and visit galleries and museums. We're pretty happy to be back out there, too, photographing and chatting with folks at these events."

As a presenting organization, the Folk Society submits information and may arrange interviews with musicians, but, more often than not, our local media is in tune (another pun intended) with the performing arts scene in the Haliburton Highlands and are proactive in showcasing and celebrating live music, dance and theatre events.

Walt Tose, president of the Folk Society on behalf of all the local presenting organizations and businesses, extends "a huge thank you to our radio and print partners for helping to build our community of music."

This submission is a monthly column from the Haliburton County Folk society.

Live music all summer long

JERELYN CRADEN

Special to County Life

Not only is the Highlands rich with natural beauty – 600 lakes, lush green trees, long winding roads, sprawling colourful foliage, a full spectrum of glorious wildflowers, robust gardens, magnificent songbirds, critters that hop, slither, and jump – it is also rich with live music performed by highly entertaining musicians, singers, and songwriters in numerous venues all summer long.

So, if you've been on the lake all day, or working at your computer, or putting in a long shift at the office, store, or work site, then why not treat yourself to live music that will lift your spirits and enrich your day?

Now, you can enjoy all kinds of great music right here in the Highlands: country, folk, blues, rock, jazz and even opera. And, with so many concerts scheduled throughout the summer, here is a list of the venues where they will be performed and the links to get the information you will need.

Pie in the sky

Sometimes wish that weather could be made to fit my plan Still I'm glad Ma Nature's done her thing since time began Tougher, wiser, bolder than the knowledge of the young
She'll use climatology, and speak its native tongue

Though she isn't happy
With our changes to the air
Though it breaks her ancient heart
When people don't play fair
She is still the grander one
Outwits the watchers here
Makes decisions separate
Turns cloudy heavens clear

She is also brutal, hurting life, disturbing ground Humbling our security: we're never safe and sound
She's the clock which runs us, and not something more to own
When our follies crowd her, she just steps outside our zone

Though she isn't happy
With our changes to the air
Though it breaks her ancient heart
When people don't play fair
She is still the grander one
Outwits the watchers here
Makes decisions separate
Turns cloudy heavens clear

Weather's stuff of human mood, it influences art
Minus water cycle, agriculture falls apart Bottom line is that we're small, and atmosphere is huge Full respect for climate keeps our earth a green refuge.

Getting to know the Abbey Retreat Centre

BARBARA SMITH-MORRISON
Co-director, Abbey Retreat Centre

The Abbey Retreat Centre, located at 1150 Garden Gate Drive in Algonquin Highlands, is a cancer support centre that cares for the body, mind and spirit of a person while they are living with cancer. We serve people who are newly diagnosed, in the midst of treatment, navigating post-cancer life and living with advanced cancer.

Through in-person retreats and a variety of online programs, both the person living with cancer and a close support person/caregiver in their life, are provided opportunities to rest, reflect and explore practices that help to soothe, strengthen and tend the body, mind and spirit in the midst of a cancer experience.

Cancer is sometimes described as a solitary journey that we cannot do alone. A cancer diagnosis changes the trajectory of our lives and our life story may need to be reshaped; grief and loss may need to be acknowledged; time away from our regular routine may be a catalyst for deep reflection and healing.

Our programming is rooted in five core understandings:
One, all activities and healing modalities included have a strong research base and have been found to have a positive impact on the side effects of a cancer diagnosis and cancer treatment.
Two, health and wellness are enhanced when we pay attention to the whole person: body, mind and spirit.
Three, healing and well-being are enhanced in the community.
Four, healing is best supported when care is also extended to the key support people and caregivers.
Five, to ensure that there are no barriers to cancer support, all programs are provided at no cost. We also recognize that there are many increased expenses for individuals and families facing cancer.

What happens at a cancer-support retreat?

Programming is led by a wonderfully caring and skilled team of facilitators and practitioners. On the four-day retreat everyone is well nourished by a delicious and nutritious plant-based diet, including fish and chicken. All participants receive a massage and are introduced to a variety of practices, including gentle and restorative yoga and yoga nidra (a deep state of rest and relaxation), expressive arts and art-making, nature connection, large and small group conversation, music therapy and other healing modalities. There are opportunities to share your story and witness the stories of others without the need to fix, save or give advice. It is healing to be deeply listened to and to listen deeply to others.

Other cancer support initiatives

The Abbey Retreat Centre also offers three-day retreats and a variety of online cancer support experiences that integrate and creatively adapt these research-based practices while creating a safe, accepting and caring online community. Sometimes the greatest and most healing gift is simply to be with others who are walking a similar difficult path.

We are just beginning to work with others in the community to begin a volunteer-based quilting initiative: A Warm Hug from the Highlands, creating warm and comforting flannel-backed quilts for local and seasonal residents facing a cancer diagnosis.

All are welcome to come for a visit, tour and to learn more see www.abbey-retreatcentre.ca or call 705-754-2966.

Local Landmark Mystery

The following are images of a local landmark. Try to guess what the landmark is and look for the reveal in next week's County Life. Concept and images from Thom Lambert, who shares informative posts about things to see and do in the Highlands through @myhaliburtonhighlands on Instagram. /Submitted by Thom Lambert

Local Landmark reveal: the Lincoln town car in Snowdon park. This 1972 Lincoln town car sits mysteriously in the woods in Snowdon Park, surrounded by the remnants of a farm homestead. A fairly level 2.5 kilometre hike takes you through a variety of habitats out to the car, which sits partway around the Ross Rigney loop. With a total of about 6.5 kilometres of some of the least hilly trails in the Haliburton Highlands, Snowdon Park is a great year-round hiking destination. /Submitted by Thom Lambert

EXECUTIVE ASSISTANT

POSITION DESCRIPTION:
Reporting to the President and CEO, the Executive Assistant (EA) is responsible for providing all phases of administrative support and secretarial services for the President and CEO and Board of Directors, in a timely, accurate and professional manner, and to relieve the President and CEO of various administrative details. The EA relieves the President & CEO of various administrative details by managing administrative operations with respect to planning, scheduling (Outlook Calendar), documentation, inquiries, anticipating needs and suggesting appropriate courses of action, with minimal supervision. The EA also supports the President & CEO in managing operational priorities and requirements of the Board of Directors; this includes coordinating meetings, developing agendas, recording minutes, determining and acting on follow-up items for committees, preparing and submitting government reports, coordinating administrative and Board policies, and dealing with legal matters. The EA to President and CEO also provides coverage for the EA of Medical Affairs.

QUALIFICATIONS:
To be successful in this position, the candidate must possess post-secondary education in office administration or business management, or equivalent, and a minimum of three (3) to five (5) years direct experience working in an executive assistant or senior administrative support role, preferably in a health care setting. Experience with project management and planning would be an asset.

This position requires advanced keyboarding skills (minimum 70-80 words per minute), proficiency in Microsoft Word, Outlook, PowerPoint, Publisher, and Excel, as well as familiarity with technology related to teleconferencing and videoconferencing, document control systems, online reporting, and scheduling systems. Excellent verbal and written communication skills are essential, and minute-taking skills (using laptop/tablet during meeting) are a critical component of the role along the ability to work in a self-directed fashion. The candidate must be a self-starter, demonstrating self-confidence and initiative in dealing professionally, effectively and courteously with all levels of staff and contacts of the President and CEO, while maintaining diplomacy and confidentiality. This position also requires exceptional organizational skills and ability to manage multiple competing priorities in a fast-paced environment. As well, knowledge of meeting/parliamentary rules and the ability to summarize complex debates would be beneficial.

Happy about heritage

Young and slightly older alike enjoyed the second annual Dorset Heritage Day held last Saturday. Above, Charlotte Bailey, 2, of Newmarket, has a look around while Stella Gopsill of Baysville spins wool. The day was celebrated in both Dorset and Stanhope with musicians, local artisans and all kinds of other cool, heritage-style attractions. See page 14 for more photos.

"It's places like the Frost Centre where children get to experience what a career in natural resources or forestry means," Taylor says.

Even if they don't choose a career in science, it's still important to know about it.
